RESPECT IN THE WORKPLACE POLICY

It is the policy of the Recreation and Park Department that all employees treat co-workers and members of the public with courtesy and respect at all times. A respectful workplace enhances our ability to maintain beautiful parks and provide enriching recreational activities, and makes our Department a more pleasant and rewarding place to work.

Disrespectful behaviors are defined here as unwelcome, offensive conduct, expressed either verbally, in writing, or through physical behavior. It is important to keep in mind that it is not what is intended that is important so much as how a reasonable person would perceive such conduct. When an employee is disrespected their motivation is adversely impacted and work performance suffers. Examples of disrespectful behaviors may include but are not limited to:

- Derogatory comments, malicious gossip or any language that is used to degrade, intimidate or coerce another individual or group of individuals
- Insults, slurs, jokes or any language that infers a negative characteristic
- Profanity
- Offensive posters, drawings, insignias or signs
- Blocking normal movement, offensive gestures, unwelcome touching or shoving
- Threats or assault

Everyone has responsibility to stop disrespectful behavior at the workplace.

- If another's actions or words offend you, let them know their behavior is unwelcome and ask them to stop.
- If you have any reason to believe your actions offend someone, stop the behavior.
- If you observe disrespectful behavior, you should tell the person behaving disrespectfully their behavior is inappropriate or report the behavior to your supervisor.

If the unwelcome behavior continues, report this to your supervisor or the Human Resources Division. Supervisors and managers should model respectful behavior and have a responsibility to keep the workplace free of inappropriate conduct. Supervisors and managers must take such complaints seriously, find out what happened, and take appropriate action. Timely intervention is key to providing a respectful workplace. Retaliation against anyone who has raised a concern about disrespectful behavior is also prohibited.

Any employee who believes he or she has been treated disrespectfully in violation of this policy may file a complaint of disrespectful behavior by contacting the employee's supervisor or manager, or the Department's Human Resources Division. If a complaint of disrespectful behavior is made to a supervisor or manager, the supervisor/manager must report the complaint to the Department's Human Resources Division.

Any employee found to have engaged in disrespectful behavior or retaliation may be subject to disciplinary action up to and including dismissal. This policy shall not alter or affect the right of any person to file a discrimination charge with the Recreation and Park Department's Human Resources Division, the Department of Human Resources' Equal Employment Opportunity Unit, the California Department of Fair Employment and Housing, the United States Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, or to consult with a union representative or private attorney.
