SAN FRANCISCO ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY (“SFZS”)
RECREATION AND PARK COMMISSION REPORT
October 2019

- ZOOtoberFest Is Here!

October is a great time in the Bay Area, especially at SF Zoo & Gardens where we host ZOOtoberFest! With daily hay mazes and weekend concerts ZOOtoberFest is for the whole family!

- SFZS Welcomes Back Stanford Students!

SFZS’s mission is to “connect” people with wildlife, including college students! This year, we again hosted Stanford University students and their clinical class “Life in the Zoo: Behavior, Welfare and Enrichment”. The class is part of Stanford’s Sophomore College and co-taught by SFZS and Stanford staff. Students design and build animal enrichment devices to improve animal welfare. This is the 5th time the class has been offered and yet another example of how our Dianne Feinstein and Richard Blum Wellness Center serves as an important resource to the wider Bay Area academic, educational, and animal-focused communities!

- SFZS’ “Insect Zoo” Receives Praise for Damselfly Project

SFZS was thrilled to show “odonate” experts Kathy and David Biggs our “Forktail Damselfly Project” located in our California Conservation Corridor. Kathy is the author of Common Dragonflies of California: A Beginner’s Pocket Guide. In a note expressing her thanks to SFZS staff, Kathy wrote “Thanks so much for taking the time to show us around!! What you are doing is marvelous!!” SFZS is taking the lead in ensuring the survival of this beautiful and local damselfly by relocating the remaining members of the species to more hospitable living environments in San Francisco!

- A New Class of Turtles Has Arrived at the Zoo!

As fall arrives, the leaves change colors, birds begin migrations, and pond turtles start to hatch! Eighteen western pond turtle eggs arrived at the Zoo from our Point Reyes research site last month, and so far 15 of 18 have successfully emerged from their eggshells. These tiny turtles range in size from 4.5 to 7.7 grams! The turtles will stay with us for two years until they are bigger than a potential predator bullfrog's mouth before being released back to Point Reyes or to locations in the Marin Headlands to restore the species' populations in our nearest National Park.

- Thirty Years of Research on Global Amphibian Declines

Last week, SFZS staff represented the Animal Wellness department at the Amphibian Population Declines Symposium at Redpath Museum in Montreal. This meeting marks 30 years of progress in confronting amphibian declines – first recognized as a global problem at the 1989 1st World Congress of Herpetology meeting. After three decades of research, sixteen experts presented on past and current threats to amphibians. The leading concerns include disease, habitat loss, invasive species, and climate change. To save amphibians from extinction, conservation action such as San Francisco Zoo and Gardens' amphibian head start and research program is necessary to return endangered species to the wild.

- St. Jude's Races Toward a Cure with the SF Zoo!

On September 28th, more than 1,600 participants turned out at the Zoo for St. Jude's annual 5k run/walk to help end childhood cancer. Since 2013, supporters of St. Jude's have filled the Zoo on race day, running and walking to raise money for cancer treatment and research. This event was made possible by 150 staff and volunteers, and the Zoo was glad to be represented by our very own IT Director! The race continues to gain popularity, with this year seeing the highest participation yet! Our 90th Anniversary theme for September highlighted how the Zoo strives to be a good neighbor to our community, and St. Jude's 5k was a very fitting way to finish out the month's celebrations. The San Francisco Zoo is honored to partner with St. Jude's and to support such a vital cause, and we are thankful to all who make it happen year after year.

- SFZS Teen Volunteer Goes Above and Beyond for Water Conservation

This month, SFZS’ “Talk on the Wild Side” (TOWS) volunteers gathered family and friends to talk to Zoo visitors about the EarthEcho Water Challenge. At their water monitoring station in the Sculpture Learning Plaza, guests could test temperature, turbidity, dissolved oxygen, and pH, all while learning what water quality means for public health, and what they can do about it. Teen volunteers spoke to more than 200 guests, and had many amazing conversations!

- Sketching at SF Zoo & Gardens with Walt Disney Family Museum!

In celebration of both SFZS’ 90th Anniversary and the 10th Anniversary of the Walt Disney Family Museum, the two institutions partnered for a unique wildlife illustration experience. In the sold-out workshop offered at the Zoo’s Lurie Education Center on September 21st, attendees got up close and personal in drawing four ambassador animals from the Koret Animal Resource Center and two alpacas from the Children’s Zoo. Art is just another way of connecting Zoo visitors to wildlife!

- NOAA Visitors Enthusiastic to Continue SFZS Partnership

On September 17th, SFZS welcomed John Armor, Director of the Office of National Marine Sanctuaries along with several of his colleagues from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). SFZS staff met with the visitors and brought them to tour the Coastal Conservation Center. SF Zoo has had a longstanding partnership with NOAA in co-sponsoring past and current programs and looks forward to potential future collaborations between our two organizations!
