

Process and Public Outreach

A brief series of public workshops was held to finalize the conceptual design of the park space. Following concept design is the design phase. During this phase, the details of the park, including, for example what type of play equipment will be built, will be developed. After design, the project is put out to bid to construct the park site. Finally, construction of the park site begins. Below is a draft timeline of this process. We'll be updating the website if changes in the process are necessary.
